Parents, Listen to Your Children - OCA Head

Child abuse continues to rattle the world and has started to impact the future of many countries, particularly that of Jamaica. However, Northern Caribbean University (NCU) has joined the fight against child abuse and has sought to bring about a change by educating the future leaders and nation builders of this issue. Diahann Gordon-Harrison, Head of the Office of Children's Advocate shares with audience at the NCU's Health Week 2015 pertinent statistics that will help in making Jamaica a safer place for families.
