THE ALUMNI↔NCU CONNECTION

No Room for Spectators - USM President

"We are poised and ready to make history in nation building," echoed Charvone Clarke, president of the Northern Caribbean University's (NCU) United Student Movement (USM). Clarke, was speaking from the perspective, "We are Nation Builders" at the USM formal inauguration at NCU's Gymnatorium recently. Clarke, a senior Religion and Theology major shared that the aim of the USM is to serve the students of NCU and together call upon the leaders of the nation to lead under the blood of Jesus Christ; he called upon the student body to play a part in the building of the nation through hard work, dedication and Jesus Christ.

NCU Allow Students to Rise to the Occasion

"We rise in lifting others." Northern Caribbean University (NCU) is a vessel that sails the sea of excellence. At Northern Caribbean University, each individual is given the same chance to achieve greatness, with the help of God and faculty and staff. Roshane Foster, a scholar of a youth with cerebral palsy, received his certificate in Office Computer Applications 2013 recently at the Solomon Harriott Lecture Theatre on the University's Mandeville campus.
