NCU ALUMNUS SHINES AT BBC

The rich texture of his voice, his articulate delivery and authoritative presentation resonate with listeners in Jamaica, who hear him on the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC). But Neil Nunes remains humbled, seeing himself as very blessed to be the Kingston-born, Manchester-raised boy who attended Villa Road All-Age, Knox College and Northern Caribbean University (NCU) who got a glorious opportunity.

Nunes' journey to the present has not been without hurdles. He shrugs off the critics like those who describe his voice as "grating and inappropriate for the station." In a recent telephone interview, Nunes told The Gleaner, "I don't give credence to them."

Volunteerism Gives Experience - NCU President

Several years ago I did an extensive study about Jamaicans who study abroad and remained in the country they studied. I pointed out then that the benefits of them returning far outweighed the disadvantages. Many people did not agree then and many still do not agree. The brain drain is still a controversial issue today although it is not spoken of as often in the public domain.

THE OFFICE OF CAREER & EMPLOYMENT SERVICES

Persons who are interested in participating in the Japan Exchange Teaching (JET) Programme, kindly send an email to careers@ncu.edu.jm with your name and contact number to register.

Personnel from the Japanese Embassy are scheduled to visit NCU's campus next week Thursday, October 29th at 10:30 a.m. (venue to be decided) to participate in an information session and answer questions regarding the programme. Confirmation of this event is dependent on the number of persons who have expressed an interest.

The JET Programme accepts applications from students who have completed a Bachelor's degree (all disciplines) or persons with a Diploma in Teaching who are interested in participating in a cultural exchange programme.
